1. About the new system

The “Request for Academic Accommodations for Students with Disabilities” (hereinafter referred to as “accommodation requests”), which was previously distributed mainly by students to instructors by hand, will now be distributed through the new online system (with some exceptions, see page 9). For specific application methods, issuing accommodation requests, and confirmation by subject instructors, please proceed by consulting the coordinator of the Disability Resource Center (DRC), referring to this manual for guidance. As before, accommodation requests will be issued and distributed on a semester basis.

2. Consultation on Academic Accommodation and the flow of application procedures using the new system.

(1) Consultation before application

When applying for Academic Accommodations due to a disability or other reason, please contact the DRC at the campus where your college is located to schedule an appointment for an interview.

Students at Suzaku Campus should contact Kinugasa Campus.

<Regarding consultations with DRC coordinators>

Prior to online application, the coordinator at the DRC will confirm the submission of the consent form “Support Application Form” and supporting documents (e.g., disability certificate, medical certificate).

The letter of academic accommodation requests is prepared by the student in consultation with the DRC coordinator (at the same time as an initial application process, or multiple times as necessary).

The accommodation requests created with the DRC coordinator will be distributed to the instructors of the selected courses after being approved by the Dean of the Student Affairs Division and the Dean of the college or graduate school to which the student belongs. Therefore, it will take some time before distribution (See the diagram “Flow of issuing and distributing accommodation requests.”)

Diagram: Flow of issuing and distributing accommodation requests

If the courses for accommodation requests are undecided at the time of the approval, or if the student wishes to add or change the distribution courses, the accommodation requests cannot be distributed automatically by the system. In such cases, the student has to distribute the accommodation requests to the course instructors by hand or alternative means. In such cases, please confirm the distribution method with the DRC coordinator and handle personal information with utmost care and consideration.

3. Distribution of academic accommodation requests using the system, and confirmation of responses from instructors

When an accommodation request is automatically distributed to the instructor through the system, the instructor in charge of the course will confirm the content of the request. The system will then automatically notify the student of the instructor's confirmation via their university email.

Distribution of the accommodation requests is not the end of the process. After distribution, you should proactively consult with the instructor in charge of the course about the methods and environment that will enable you to study without hindrance.

Please also continue to consult with the DRC regarding any questions or concerns you may have after distribution, as well as for semester reflection, accommodation requests, and support plans for the next semester.
