This is a great opportunity to consult one-on-one with professors who study in various research fields. If you already have chosen your research theme, this is the place for you to deepen and develop your research theme, or if you are considering advancing to Graduate School, this is a chance for you to get more specific image of leaning by joining the session of the Graduate School of International Relations. We hope that each participant has a profitable time at the session.

«Example of inquiries and consultations»

- I want to think about a research theme more specifically.
- I want to know various professors' research content and educational backgrounds more specifically. (It is possible to consult about other professors' research field, etc., excluding participating professors.)
- I am considering going on to the graduate school of International Relations and other graduate schools. What is it like to learn at a graduate school? Also, what are the differences between learning at a graduate school and college?
- Learning at a graduate school, how is it profitable to my career after completion of the master's program.
