

SPECIAL LECTURE

LAW, GLOBALISATION AND INTERCULTURAL DIALOGUES

Speaker:
Christoph Eberhard

Legal anthropologist, Associate researcher at University Saint Louis
(Brussels) and Montreal University

December 3, 2015(Thu.)

Time: 16:20-17:50

Venue: Koshinkan 735

Language: English

Free Admission

1972: Born in Austria

2000: Ph. D. in Law (Université Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne)

Former invited professor at European Academy of Legal Theory, Brussels, University Paris 1 Panthéon
Sorbonne and University Saint Louis, Brussels.

He also has a deep knowledge about the Indian culture and the Chinese martial arts. He got the certification of instructor of Yoga and Chinese martial arts.

Globalization is transforming the world into a smaller place, into one world. At the same time, we are in the era of cultural diversity more than ever. What awaits us in this world where uniformity (of borders) and diversity (of cultures) coexist? This is a challenge we face in an attempt of intercultural dialogues.

Law is an important part of the process to confront this challenge.

The legal anthropological approach had been applying its methods to address the issue. How can legal anthropology capture (provide explanations) this phenomenon?

The lecture not only focuses on its legal aspect, but also provides some fresh insights how we can bring harmony to governance and sustainable development into the process.

Sponsored by the International Relationships Association

Contact: ir0143fk@ed.ritsumei.ac.jp

(Professor Tatsuzawa's seminar, Katori)