11. Supplementary notes

- (1) Before publishing, you are allowed to revise and edit your doctoral dissertation partially. However, if the contents or the volume of the dissertation you are going to publish are extremely different from the original dissertation, or if it is difficult to assume that they are the same doctoral dissertation, we cannot support publishing the revised one. Also, once you are selected as a recipient of this grant, you need to begin the composition/ typesetting and proofreading processes by your publisher right away. You are advised to complete revising, editing or adjusting the volume of your paper by the end of summer. Please keep in mind that if you conduct revising, editing and re-composing process after summer, there is a high possibility that you will not be able to publish your doctoral dissertation. You need to work on this in a planned way because your receipt will be cancelled if you cannot publish your book by the Grant Period.
- (2) This grant is different from the publishing grant which JSPS provides with the fund from outside sources. Therefore, we recommend you to apply for the JSPS's publishing grant regardless of the fact that you are selected as a recipient of this grant or not.
