4. About Your Residence Status in Japan

Those acquiring a Japanese Residence Status anew or for the first time, and those already with a Japanese Residence Status but which will expire by the time of enrollment, must obtain, or renew, a Status of Residence in Japan after completing 2nd Enrollment Procedures.

- (1) Obtaining Residence Status in Japan (for those without a Japanese Residence Card)

It is very difficult for individuals granted permission to enroll in the university who reside outside of Japan to apply for a Certificate of Eligibility (hereinafter "COE"), which is required when applying for a "Student" visa. Therefore, once an incoming student completes all of his/her admission procedures, the university applies for a COE on that student's behalf.

From the time that the university confirms that an incoming student's admission, tuition, and miscellaneous membership fees have been deposited into the university's designated account and that the student has correctly filled out and submitted all required documents to request the university complete a proxy application for their COE, the process for obtaining a COE takes six weeks at minimum.

Incoming students who wish for the university to complete a proxy application for their COE should ignore the payment window indicated in the entrance exam schedule and instead swiftly make payment of their admission, tuition, and miscellaneous membership fees into the university's designated account as soon as possible. Such students should make payment early enough to allow plenty of time for the aforementioned COE application to take place from start to finish before their planned travel to Japan.

After the university confirms that Admission Procedures are completed, in particular, that an incoming student's admission, tuition, and miscellaneous membership fees have been deposited into the university's designated account, detailed instructions on what documents to submit so that the university may complete a proxy COE application on the student's behalf will be sent to the student individually.

For deadlines and details pertaining to university Admission Procedures, incoming students should follow the instructions sent to them along with their admissions screening results.

As a guide, if they were unable to obtain a COE by two weeks before enrolling, they will not be able to enter Japan with the "Student" status of residence of before entering school.

Finally, incoming students are to be fully aware that the screening process and decision on whether or not to issue a COE are at the sole discretion of the Immigration Bureau. The university has no way of knowing the screening process, how long it may take, or whether or not a COE will ultimately be issued.

- (2) Changing Residence Period or Status in Japan (for those with a Japanese Residence Card)

Depending on an incoming student's enrollment/employment status with their current institution/ organization and the expiration date of their current Residence Period, incoming students will need to submit either an Application for Extension of Period of Stay or an Application for Change of Status of Residence. Incoming students should follow the detailed instructions sent to them along with their admissions screening results in order to apply. For the details, please contact the administrative office of each graduate school.

Notes:

- * As your COE will be issued by the Immigration Services Agency of Japan (Ministry of Justice) and the student visa will be issued by the Japanese Embassy/ Consulate (Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Japan), Ritsumeikan University is not responsible in the event that you are unable to obtain either of these. The Admission Fee will not be refunded under any circumstances.
- * Incoming students are to be fully aware that the university provides no support for those who are in Japan on a short-term visa with the Residence Status of “Temporary Visitor” who wish to apply for a change of Residence Status to “Student”.

(2) The Scholarship System

Scholarships which international students may be selected for after enrollment include those offered by the university and the Ministry of Education, Culture, Sports, Science and Technology such as their Monbukagakusho Honors Scholarship (meant to assist newly arrived international students), and scholarships offered by both public and private foundations. Most of these scholarships require a recommendation by the university, and to be recommended, students must submit an application to the university during a designated application period after enrollment (most scholarship foundations are only looking for one or two students to be recommended for their scholarship, thus the university will determine which applicant or applicants to recommend for each based on grade standards and guidelines which will be shared with students after enrollment).
